

IV Nutritional Therapy

An adequate amount of essential nutrients and vitamins is key for supporting your body in order to function at its best. When you lack necessary nutrients, or become dehydrated, it can negatively affect how you feel, as well as vital bodily and cognitive functions. We here at RTC want to help each and every patient feel and perform at their best. That is why, we offer a variety of nourishing IV therapies that are packed with blends of all natural vitamins, amino acids, and antioxidants. These revitalizing remedies can help replenish, revive, and energize you from the inside out.

What to Expect

IV Vitamin Therapy works by administration of vitamins and nutrients directly into the bloodstream, bypassing the digestive system. This provides increased cell absorption and 100% bioavailability of vitamins via IV infusion. Booster shots are administered via intramuscular (IM) injection so there is no GI metabolism, which also allows for increased absorption. With oral supplements, you only get about 20% absorption after filtering through your digestive system, which clearly pales in comparison to IV vitamins.

After an IV infusion, the vitamins remain in your system and maintain your levels for 2-3 weeks because it is absorbed directly into your bloodstream and bypasses the GI tract. One IM (intramuscular) vitamin booster shot is equivalent to taking one week's worth of oral vitamin supplements.

How Often?

The frequency of IV therapy is determined on a patient by patient basis, we take a customized approach to suit your individual needs. For preventative health and wellness, we recommend two IV drips per month to help balance out any vitamin deficiencies.

In some cases, with people who suffer from advanced stages of autoimmune diseases or cancer, continued IV therapy may be necessary for nutritional support. Some patients get progressively better and after a series of treatments they no longer require ongoing weekly IV therapy, only monthly treatments to maintain balance. Other patients need regular vitamin injections in order to help alleviate symptoms of their chronic or common medical conditions.

Diagnostic tests are available to better determine how often a person should be receiving treatments.
